Appalachian v. Appellation

Editor:

Always great to read the NCJ and Thadeus Greenon is a favorite. In "Props and Measures: Cannabis Industry Split on Prop. 64" (Oct. 6), he reports: "(Jason Kinney) said the legislation includes provisions for Appalachian designations and other things designed to support a 'craft industry.'"

I doubt that Mr. Kinney was referring to "Appalachian" but instead to appellation, referring to herb produced within a geographical area. Perhaps one day we will have our own "Appellation Trails" where tourists can travel the "Willow Creek to Weitchpec Wonder Tour" or the "Mattole to Miranda Miracle Miles," much as cognoscenti tour the wine regions of Napa and other counties.

A Faulty Hypothesis

Editor:

Barry Evans article "Candelabra Trees" (Oct. 13) was much appreciated, although I would like to put forth an alternative hypothesis as to the trees' origin.

In his article, Evans quotes an explanation from the Save the Redwoods/Shady Dell web page in which Emily Burns suggests the trees were the result of strong winds and salty air, being near the coast. I am skeptical of the explanation that strong winds should effect trees on the ridges more than down by the coast. I would suggest that seismic shaking is the cause, for the trees are very near the northern end of the San Andreas fault.

There is a group of redwood trees by Fort Ross that survived several earthquakes that occurred along the San Andreas fault, all with broken tops. Seismic shaking tends to break the tops out of the tall trees, whereas storms tend to blow whole trees over, in my opinion. Just a thought, maybe the 1906 quake, which shook that region violently, is the cause, not storms.

Bob McPherson, Bayside

'Bamboozled'

Editor:

Regarding "The Art of the Deal" (Oct. 6), it's all true.

It bears repeating until the rest of our citizens figure out how much they are being bamboozled.

I followed your article until you mentioned the "small arsenal." Huh? What? I missed the connection. I think I understand, but not really. Some days I'm a little more dense than others.

Keep up the terrific reporting. I really enjoy seeing big, informative articles, especially from such a small newspaper ... and it's free to boot.

Vote Allison!

Editor:

Eureka is getting excited as word is getting around town about city council candidate Austin Allison. When you hear Austin speak, his upbeat 21st century outlook is refreshing and his enthusiasm pours out as he shares his vision for working people in creating living wages, improving infrastructure that encourages lifelong residency and attracts the professionals Eureka lacks, including physicians. Not only is Austin a medical professional at St. Joseph Hospital, he is a union organizer who has helped get 300 local families off welfare and onto a living wage at St. Joseph.

Austin plans to support expansion of small businesses and entice computer technology companies into Eureka by providing the addition of one back-up line to ensure service 24/7 to businesses like St. Joseph Hospital that relies on vital computer data for patient care.

When you vote for Austin Allison, you vote for a man with a can-do attitude.

It's Up to Us, Eureka

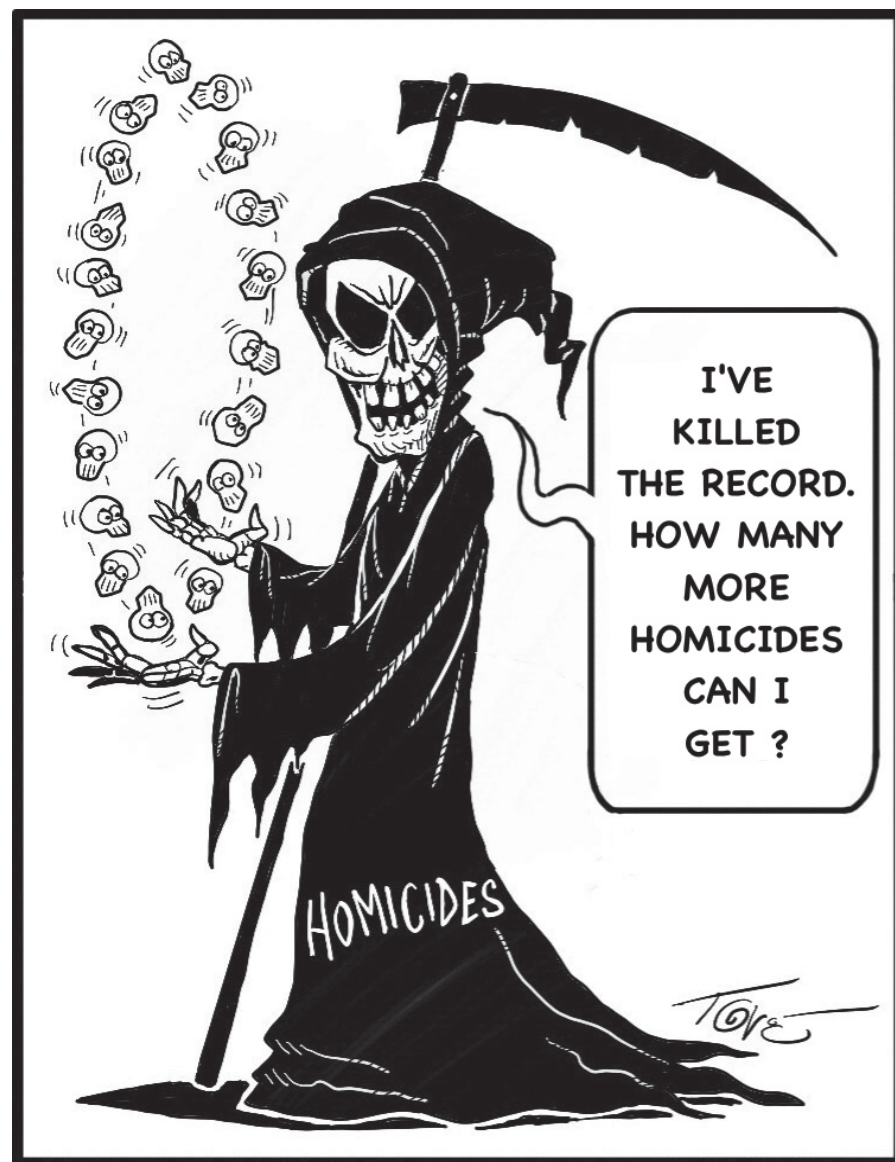

Editor:

I've been reading the various statements and literature put out by Mr. Fullerton and Mr. Allison in their contest for the vacant seat on the Eureka City Council.

Mr. Fullerton lists his major asset as his decades of involvement in city government and civic affairs and promises to bring that wealth of experience to bear on solving the problems we currently face. At the same time, however, he asserts that these problems are a result of decades of government indifference; they have been ignored for too long.

But as a good CPA, Mr. Fullerton should recognize that every asset has an off-setting liability. In this case, the liability is his involvement in the self-same indifference to the problems that he lays at the feet of past city governance, i.e the asset that he claims to qualify him to find new solutions.

Mr. Allison is new to the arena, so his asset is a fresh perspective and a lack of connections to the network of "business-as-usual" politics. His liability is the lack of experience in how local government actually works.

It's up to us, the electorate, to weigh and balance all such assets versus liabilities, and make a reasoned choice for who we feel would best serve the interests of the community, rather than their personal interests and pocketbooks.

Vote Integrity!

Editor:

Many in our county are grudgingly going over to Hillary despite her treachery toward Sanders. Others say that since she is a woman, we should support her. However, Hillary has in fact been treacherous to women. She went along with a president as well as a husband who allegedly raped a woman and exploited a young intern, Monica Lewinsky, and allegedly viciously attacked and threatened the women that he sexually abused/slept with.

Trump, when confronted with his crude remarks, apologized to America for those words, but pointed out what the Clintons had done to women. She had the opportunity right there to apologize to those women, who were in the audience, but she didn't.

Clinton is everything Democrats are against in terms of cronyism, "pay-for-play," elitist, a war-monger and in bed with Monsanto, the Pharmaceutical Cartel, the pro-GMO crowd, and many other totally politically incorrect entities. Dems, vote with integrity!

Jean Damon, McKinleyville

Think of SCOTUS

Editor:

While registering voters, we hear things like: "I don't like either candidate;" "I'll vote third party." Hillary or Donald will be our next president. If you can't vote for either, vote for the U.S. Supreme Court. The next president will nominate up to four Supreme Court justices.

The Supreme Court of the United States has the ultimate responsibility to review decisions of lower courts. It is the final interpreter of federal constitutional law.

Issues at risk with a Trump presidency are: women's health, LGBT concerns, health care, immigration, affirmative action, voting rights, labor rights, fair pay, equal treatment without discrimination based on race, religion, national origin, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation or disability.

The Supreme Court has been the catalyst for social progress — or social regression — throughout our country's history.

Ask yourself: Which candidate you want to have the responsibility for nominating Supreme Court justices and filling federal court vacancies?

Arcata citizens have supported a Utility Users Tax for the past 23 years. It has made living in Arcata more enjoyable because it supports park upgrades, road repairs and more recreational programs for children and adults.

Measure F renews the Utility User Tax (UTT) with no increase to the current rate. It's an eight-year extension of the existing 3 percent tax you currently see on your PG&E, cable TV, phone and water bills.

It's worth it. I support it. Your vote counts. Thank you.

Vote V!

Editor:

Measure V opponents spent thousands on mailers refuting "Rent Control."

Lies of omission abound. They failed to mention "mobile home parks" in regular font regarding the measure because they want you to think it is about all rentals.

Statement: Counties are rejecting ordinances. Truth: More than 90 municipalities have such ordinances in effect successfully for decades, including the city and county of Sonoma. Statement: Carson must pay millions after losing a case. Truth: Carson is appealing, paying nothing. Statement: Humboldt doesn't know long-term impacts. Truth: The county report estimates $6,000, a paltry sum to preserve more than 1,000 affordable housing units! Statement: Studies point to ineffectiveness. Truth: Studies, including Arcata's, show that ordinances are effective.

Humboldt is losing discretionary spending in its local economy now as wealthy park owners suck it from the wallets of thousands of county residents and losing affordability in its mobile home parks. Yes on V!

Hilary Mosher, McKinleyville

Editor:

I am the treasurer of the "Yes on Measure V" committee. I was aghast when more than $165,000 came into the county to fight the few grandmothers who are trying to preserve their housing and, thus, live out their lives in dignity. But in the last week thousands of dollars came into the "No" side from park owners who don't even have a park in Humboldt.

Since I have gone public with my support, my landlord has retaliated and I fear what will happen if we lose. I also fear for other low income folks who stand to lose more than just dollars. I am dumbfounded by the amount of money parks must generate if the owners can throw so much at the few that have dared to stand up to protect the future of unsubsidized low-income housing in Humboldt. Please, vote yes on measure V.

home rents, I thought, "Great, a responsive government listening to its residents."

But now that I've started reading its consultant's draft report, I am mystified.

The report examines five possible responses to rising rents. Instead of describing the pros and cons of each, something actually helpful for a city's decision making, it singles out just one alternative for one description of any possible downside.

The summary of a different alternative was so glowing I followed the footnotes. It turns out the glow comes from a consulting firm that represents property owners and mobile home park owners. It guides them in maximizing returns and getting their "entitlements."

Now this oddly loaded report is being aimed at Measure V. A $160,000 out-of-area campaign is holding the propaganda gun.

Correction

A story in the Oct. 13, 2016, edition of the Journal headlined "Unopposed" included inaccurate dates for Adelene Jones' time on the Blue Lake City Council. Jones served 20 years, from 1988 to 2008. The Journal regrets the error.

Correction

The cover story "The Case of the Missing $5 Million" in the Oct. 13, 2016, edition of the Journal contained inaccurate information about the settlement of a class action lawsuit against Skilled Healthcare in 2010. After a jury awarded plaintiffs in the case $677 million, the lawsuit was ultimately settled for $50 million. The Journal regrets the error.

Clarification

In last week's mailbox (Oct. 6), we ran two of letters questioning some statements we printed from Robert Hager about his wife Kathleen's military service in our Sept. 29 cover story, "The Last Days of the Budget Motel." This week, the Hagers provided the Journal with papers indicating both were honorably discharged. Further, documents provided by the U.S. Army indicate Mrs. Hager's military occupational specialty was classified as "food service specialist," not Ranger as stated in the Sept. 29 story. The Journal regrets any confusion caused by the story.

Write an Election Letter!

The Journal will publish letters related to local elections through Nov. 3, meaning you have until Monday, Oct. 31, at noon to get your opinion on local council races or any other election matters into print. Election letters must be no longer than 150 words — and we'll only run one per writer per week. We'll fit as many as we can into the print edition and run others online. Get writin'. (Letters responding to the Journal's non-election coverage are, as always, welcome and encouraged, and can run as long as 300 words.) All submissions should include the letter writer's full name, place of residence and phone number (we won't print your number). Send them to letters@northcoastjournal.com.

McKinleyville Man Abducted in Niger

HSU grad has spent decades doing missionary aid work

By Thadeus Greenson

thad@northcoastjournal.com

Gunshots rang out in the small town of Abalak in northern Niger shortly after nightfall on Oct. 14, leaving two people dead and a 55-year-old McKinleyville man in the hands of unknown kidnappers.

Jeffrey Woodke, a graduate of Humboldt State University with deep ties to the Arcata First Baptist Church, has spent much of the last three decades doing aid work in Niger. On Oct. 14, according to multiple news accounts, a gunman approached his home in Abalak on motorcycle and shot and killed Woodke's bodyguard and a member of the national guard before a Toyota pickup truck pulled up. Then, numerous armed men reportedly ordered Woodke to strip down to his underwear, loaded him into the truck and sped off.

No one has yet claimed responsibility for the kidnapping, but Niger Interior Minister Mohamed Bazoum told Agence France-Presse (AFP) that Woodke's abductors were "jihadists or bandits" seeking to sell him to Islamic extremists operating in neighboring Mali. Al Qaeda-linked jihadist groups have also been suspected in other kidnappings in the region.

Witnesses said the Toyota left Woodke's residence heading toward the Malian border, about 150 miles away. "The president of the republic is personally following the situation and our forces are fully mobilized to capture them and put an end to this disastrous affair," Niger's interior ministry said in a statement.

Back in Humboldt County, news of Woodke's abduction hit hard.

After graduating from HSU in 1984 with a Wildlife degree, Woodke found his passion and started a ministry in Niger, according to Redwood Coast School of Missions, which is run through Arcata First Baptist Church. A short bio on the school's website indicates missionary work in Niger has become a huge part of his life's work.

"Jeff's passion in providing humanitarian aid to those who are amongst the poorest in the world, coupled with his desire to see God's kingdom advanced in a largely Muslim world has played a large part in the life and ministry of (Arcata First Baptist Church)," the site says.

Woodke worked with the Tuareg and Woodabe people, and ran a literacy program, among other things, according to a report in CBN News, an online Christian news outlet. It seems part of Woodke's ministry involved taking groups from Humboldt County to the West African country on humanitarian trips.

On her Facebook page, Christian author Cheryl Ford indicated she was a 15-year member of Arcata First Baptist Church with Woodke and that her family went to Niger under his leadership a couple of times.

"One had to marvel at the man," Ford wrote.

Woodke returned to HSU and received a master's degree in science and environmental systems with a focus on international development in 2003. But it appears he continued to spend the bulk of his time in Niger.

"We tried many times to make him leave the area as he was more exposed than ever, but he refused, saying he wasn't afraid," AFP quoted the resident as saying.

At the time of his abduction, Woodke was working through Youth with a Mission, which bills itself as a "global movement of Christians ... dedicated to serving Jesus throughout the world." The group reports that it works in more than 1,100 locations spread across 180 countries, with a staff of more than 1,800. The group's spokesman, Pete Thompson, issued a statement indicating that Woodke had been working with a locally based aid organization, JEMED. According to the statement, JEMED has been working in the region for more than 25 years with the pastoral Tuareg and Fulani people through an integrated program aimed at helping them adapt to a more "sedentary lifestyle and overcome drought, disease, desertification and lack of access to education."

An Abalak resident told AFP that Woodke was "perfectly integrated" with the local population, speaking the Tuareg's Tamasheq language fluently as well as Fula and Arabic. The resident said locals had urged Woodke to leave the volatile area, which sits along the porous Malian border and AFP reports is "awash with armed groups."

"We tried many times to make him leave the area as he was more exposed than ever, but he refused, saying he wasn't afraid," AFP quoted the resident as saying.

North Coast Congressman Jared Huffman issued a statement to the Journal the day after Woodke's abduction indicating that he is working with the U.S. State Department.

"My thoughts are with Jeff Woodke and his loved ones during this extremely trying time," Huffman said. "It is devastating to see my constituent, who has spent his life dedicated to humanitarian service, be victimized in this way. I am working with State Department officials and will do everything in my power to ensure Jeff's swift and safe return home."

In her Facebook post, Ford quoted Tracy Rickstrew, who worked at Arcata First Baptist Church and whom Ford identifies as a "former Niger team missionary," as follows: "Please pray for him and his family. I know his heart would not be for his own life, but for God's glory in all of this. He is tough and his faith is resolute and we know that there is nowhere on earth that he can go where the Spirit of God is not already with him." ●

Proposition 64: Two Perspectives

Editor's note: With voters heading to the polls in just a few short weeks to decide the fate of Humboldt County's biggest, most celebrated and most notorious cash crop, we offer two opposing views on the issue for voters to consider. To be clear, there are many views on Proposition 64. These are just two, offered by people intimately involved with very different aspects of Humboldt County's marijuana industry. Give them a read, consider them and let us know what you think. And however you lean, make sure to vote Nov. 8.

Vote No for a Safer Community

By Steve Watson

Proposition 64, the California Marijuana Legalization Initiative, will go before voters on Nov. 8. Proposition 64 permits adult recreational use, commercial cultivation, manufacturing, transportation and sales. We stand united and strongly opposed to Proposition 64. Please join law enforcement associations, educators, and other organizations across the state in emphatically stating, "They got it wrong, again!"

Regardless of your stance on legalization, or whether you believe the end of "cannabis prohibition" is inevitable, Proposition 64 is not the answer for California. We believe this special interest-driven initiative is ill-timed, short-sighted and irresponsible. Proposition 64 is patently profit-motivated and puts what many would label "greed weed" before the best interests of the public.

Proposition 64 does not protect our children.

Young people who smoke today's highly potent marijuana may be rewiring their brains. The American Academy of Pediatrics opposes legalizing marijuana, noting cannabis can be "very harmful to adolescent health and development." Research indicates there may be a causal link between marijuana use and an increase in serious mental health issues among children, such as triggering the onset and intensifying the symptoms of schizophrenia. Mental health professionals in Humboldt County have noted a rise in acute disorders among children, which some ascribe to marijuana exposure. According to Garry Eagles, Humboldt County's superintendent of schools, "In Humboldt and Del Norte counties, roughly 1 in 5 students, or 20.3 percent, is receiving some form of special education support. The participation rate in our two counties is almost double the state-wide average for special education of 10.4 percent."

Potent edibles attractively packaged like goodies pose a danger to our children. One medical center in Colorado recently reported their hospital has seen a 51 percent increase in the number of children ages 18 and younger being treated in its emergency rooms for marijuana-related conditions over the past two years. A Pueblo hospital recently shared statistics, reporting nearly half of babies born in that hospital during one month tested positive for THC — the main psychoactive component in cannabis.

Proposition 64 does not do enough to protect our highways.

Stoned drivers are a risk to all drivers. Legalization in other states has resulted in more DUI drivers and a significant increase in deadly crashes. According to recent research released by the American Automobile Association Foundation for Highway Safety, fatal vehicle collisions involving marijuana-impaired drivers have doubled in Washington state since legalization in 2012. Colorado has also seen a spike in marijuana-related traffic fatalities and impaired drivers. Under Proposition 64, California can expect to see the same trend.

California currently has no established DUI testing standard for stoned driving and Proposition 64's proponents failed to include one in their measure. Responsible governance and common sense would prescribe that a DUI testing standard be in place before legalization.

Proposition 64 does not do enough to protect the public's health and welfare.

When you consider California's expansive campaign against Big Tobacco, Proposition 64 appears blatantly hypocritical and counters much of the progress California has made to improve public health. How can you have a public health policy that vilifies tobacco use but implicitly encourages folks to smoke a joint?

Post-legalization, some Colorado prosecutors have described seeing an increase in marijuana-connected crime including the last 10 of 15 drug-related murders in Aurora, according to a May 2016 report. But one has to look no further than the cannabis capital of the country, Humboldt County, to recognize the violence inextricably intertwined with the pot trade. Humboldt County's homicide rate has increased steadily since 2012 with 19 homicides so far this year. The county's per-capita homicide rate (rate per 100,000 population) over the past two years was nearly double that of the state's mean rate. Most of these homicides are believed to be drug-related. Ten of 15 cases in 2015 involved drugs, according to the Humboldt County chief deputy coroner, and Sheriff Mike Downey publically attributed "most" of the homicides his office investigated in 2014 to their connection with "marijuana and other drugs."

As the new "Wild West Green Rush" intensifies with legalization, an increase in marijuana-related violent crimes, DUI fatalities and public nuisance complaints can be predicted — negatively impacting public health and safety, quality of life, tourism and businesses. Proposition 64 is the wrong initiative at the wrong time for the wrong motive. We urge patience so Californians can make a more informed and responsible decision. Let's be smart, wait on legalization and allow time for California to watch and learn from other states' post-legalization woes.

If we were to brand Proposition 64 after a popular cannabis strain, we'd dub it "Train-wreck." Vote no on 64.

Better Than Status Quo, Prop 64 Protects Us All

By Kristin Nevedal

As a small marijuana farmer and co-founder of the Emerald Growers Association, I've devoted most of my working life to ending the inhumane war on marijuana and replacing it with a legal, safe and socially conscious marijuana industry, integral to the history and economy of this region.

Now — with Proposition 64 appearing on the ballot this November — California stands at the doorstep of historic change, sending a message across America that no one should ever be arrested for the responsible use or cultivation of a plant that even President Obama has said is no more harmful than alcohol.

Change is hard, no matter how righteous the cause. With cannabis, I have friends who fear the transition from an illicit market — without basic legal protections — to a fully regulated one. I respect those concerns.

Get Informed

1. Choose the Right Strain

Not all strains are created equal! When authorized to use medicinal cannabis, the first step is to do some research on what kind of cannabis will work best to alleviate your individual symptoms. Explore a variety of strains. If you are new to cannabis, it may be beneficial to try small amounts of different strains when you are first starting out. This will help you test different strains and different varieties (indicas, sativas, or hybrids) to find your perfect match. Indica strains relieve pain, help with insomnia etc. Hybrids slow anxiety and help you relax while still allowing you to keep moving though your day. Sativa strains get you moving and tend to have a more cerebral effect and be uplifting.

2. Choose the Best Consumption Method

There are many different methods of using cannabis, but not all consumption devices or types may be ideal for you. Some forms of intake, such as smoking, can aggravate symptoms instead of delivering the medicine intended to help alleviate them. Tinctures, dabs, medibles, oils, lotions, vaporizers are all different medicating options, discuss intake options with your doctor to see which form is suggested to you. If a particular method is not working for you, try something else. We are always happy to suggest other options that may be better suited for you.

There are over 100 cannabinoids that have been identified in the cannabis plant, and, with that, more benefits of the cannabis plant are discovered. We believe in the 'Heart of Humboldt', and professional and compassionate care is what you will always receive here.

Week in Weed

But the policy discourse around this issue has too often been poisoned with the same kind of misinformation and fear tactics that have been perpetuated by institutional anti-marijuana forces since the days of Reefer Madness.

Here are the facts:

Proposition 64 will better protect youth than the current status quo.

If the central objective of current prohibition is to keep marijuana out of the hands of children, then it is an abject failure.

Marijuana today is widely available. Drug dealers don't card. Thousands of juveniles every year — mostly in communities of color — are being arrested for non-violent marijuana offenses which create a permanent criminal record. And not a dime of resources is being invested by the system into proven youth prevention programs.

Studies have shown that by far the most effective method of curbing underage abuse is not criminalization, but tough age restrictions and public education campaigns as contained in Proposition 64 — similar to alcohol and tobacco, where youth use has hit historical lows.

New survey data from the Colorado Department of Public Health shows that the rates of teen marijuana use there have been essentially unchanged since legalization.

Even so, Proposition 64 is far stronger than Colorado. It enforces a 21-and-over age limit, bans public consumption, marketing to or near children and youth-attracting edibles, mandates warning labels and child-proof packaging and funds county-based youth prevention and treatment programs at an unprecedented level.

Proposition 64 is good for the public health.

There's a reason why California's most trusted health providers — including the California Medical Association, California Nurses Association and California Academy of Preventative Medicine — all support Proposition 64.

First, there's no evidence that moderate use of marijuana poses a risk for healthy adults.

Proposition 64 will provide strict testing of marijuana products to ensure that harmful pesticides, molds and other chemicals commonly found in the black market are eliminated from products sold and consumed in California.

It also protects medical patients, provides them an exemption on state sales taxes and preserves all of the current medical marijuana rights. And it will keep California at the cutting edge of clinical health research on the benefits and impacts of marijuana.

Proposition 64 will allow law enforcement to redirect resources toward combatting serious crimes.

According to the independent Legislative Analyst's Office, Proposition 64 will immediately allow state and local law enforcement agencies to save "tens of millions" in taxpayer dollars annually — the fiscal benefit of no longer arresting non-violent marijuana offenders.

In addition, the measure will provide more than $125 million every year to local law enforcement for increased enforcement of more serious crimes.

There is no objective study from other states showing an established link between increased vehicular crash risk and marijuana legalization.

Still, Proposition 64 takes meaningful steps to increase highway and traffic safety.

With technical assistance from the California Highway Patrol, it empowers experts to establish California's first statewide standards for the detection and identification of impaired driving due to marijuana — a problem that exists today with or without Proposition 64 — and funds new training and technology for officers in the field.

Proposition 64 protects small growers and our region's economy.

With policies that are dear to my heart and the hopes of this entire region, Proposition 64 takes extraordinary steps to protect small growers and other independent businesses.

It provides licensing preferences to small businesses operating safely, legally and according to state and local rules. It extends formal microbusiness opportunities and regional appellate resources. It discounts fees and licensing costs for small growers.

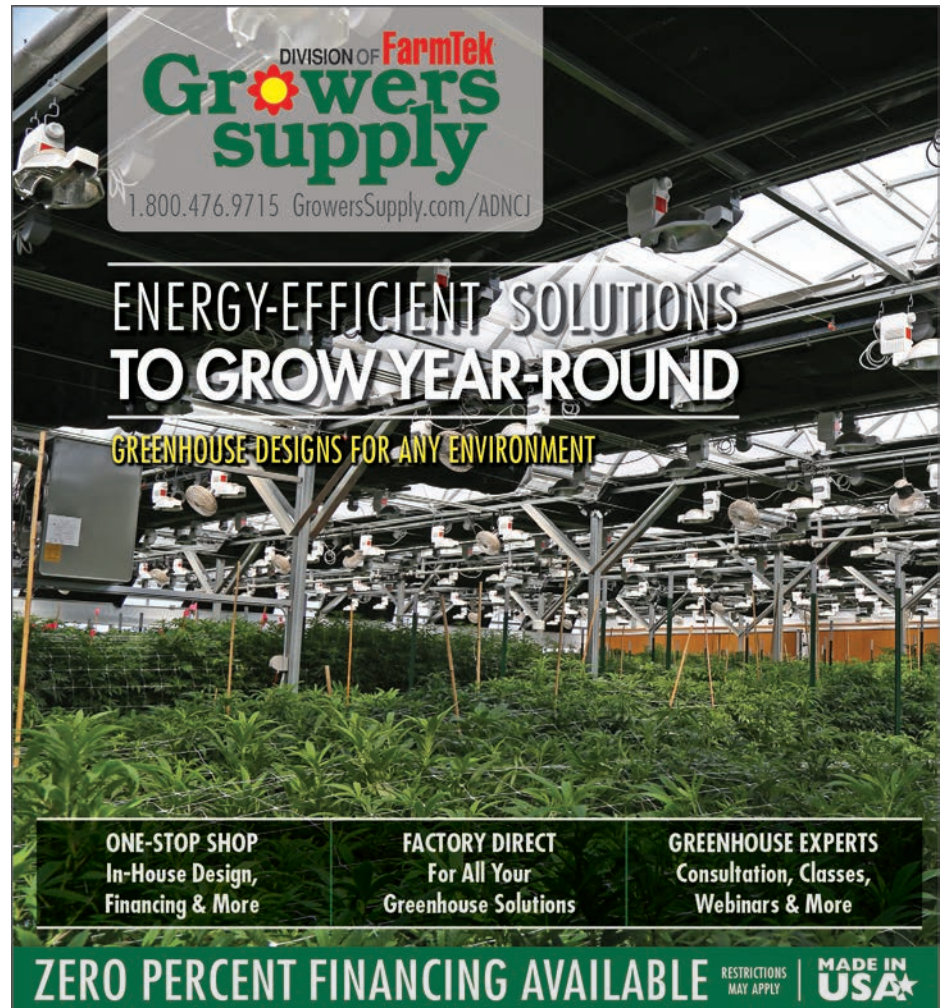

And it explicitly empowers state regulators to deny a license to prevent "creation or maintenance of unlawful monopoly power."

For the first five years, no single grower will have a license larger than 22,000 square feet. Even then, state regulators can only issue large-scale cultivation licenses if and only if they are deemed in the public interest and do not promote monopolistic behavior. What's more, any large cultivators will be strictly prohibited from the distribution or retail sales. These amendments were all adopted at the request of small growers.

Proposition 64 is thoughtful, comprehensive reform that protects kids, public health and the interests of small growers.

With the stakes so high, we owe it to voters to offer facts, not more fearmongering. ●

Cajoling Civic Duty

If you are among the estimated 75 percent of Humboldt County residents who have been ignoring a jury summons, the Superior Court may come a calling to let you know your time is up. They may even send a deputy.

According to a recent press release sent out by the court, jury services staff have resorted to phoning service skippers and are setting up five-day standby lists in order to have enough jurors available for trials. The release says the court could also look at sending deputies to “escort individuals to the courthouse for jury service.”

“Steps are now being taken because of the number of jury trials that must be heard,” court CEO Kim Bartleson says. “If jurors are not available, a case could be dismissed.”

Duplications in the 176,000 or so names on the master jury list — compiled from voter registration and Department of Motor Vehicle records — are filtered out before potential jurors are randomly selected for a summons, according to Bartleson.

Humboldt County has about 80,000 registered voters and a total population of 135,000, according to the U.S. Census. And to be able to serve, jurors must be at least 18, proficient in English and a U.S. citizen who has not been convicted of a felony, although there are some exceptions to the latter.

About 200 summons are sent out for an average court day in Humboldt County, Bartleson says. The number of potential jurors needed for the selection pool varies depending on the number and type of cases up for trial. But the issue is most people aren’t showing up.

“The drop in response rates has been an ongoing problem,” she says.

Take Oct. 12, for instance: 600 jurors were summoned and 75 appeared for a response rate of 12.5 percent. That’s down from an average 51 percent jury yield back in 2012, according to data collected by the Judicial Council of California, the policy making body of the California courts.

The general goal for response rates is around 40 percent, according to Blaine Corren, a spokesperson with the council.

Jury response varies across the state with some California counties boasting rates as high as 87 (Colusa County), while others were as low as 5 percent (Nevada County), according to judicial council data from 2012 and 2013, the most recent available.

The statewide average came in at 57 percent.

With every batch of summons sent out, a certain number are expected to drop out due to deferments or being excused, as well as simply failing to show.

In most cases, a person is considered to have done their yearly service if they are not selected for a jury after one day at the courthouse.

CLOSED

For decades, green paint and a leaking roof housed Garberville's heart. In May, it stopped.

By John Hardin

The Garberville Veterans Hall, once home to holiday meals, classes and community meetings, was shuttered in May after county inspectors found dangerous levels of black mold. Photo by John Hardin

Gold Star Mother Esther Underwood lost her son, John Haynes, the first American soldier from the Garberville area to die in World War II. But from her grief — and her generosity — the John Haynes Memorial Veterans Hall grew and, over the years, the Garberville Vets Hall, as it is more commonly known, became the heart of civic life in the Southern Humboldt community. On May 23, that heart stopped beating when county inspectors discovered unhealthy levels of black mold growing in the walls and ceiling, and ordered the hall closed.

When Bud Rogers challenged Estelle Fennell for the 2nd District seat on the Humboldt County Board of Supervisors, they faced off in a debate at the Vets Hall in Garberville. When county code enforcement officers brought guns to an inspection on Titlow Hill, SoHum people filled the Vets Hall to capacity to demand an end to those heavy-handed tactics. When the community debated whether to establish a public restroom in Garberville, we argued about it at the hall. Whenever we try to figure out what we will do, as a community, about anything of substance in Southern Humboldt, we discuss it at the Vets Hall.

The hall also includes a branch of the Humboldt County Superior Court, a small courtroom where, during certain hours, people can pay traffic tickets or have their cases heard by a judge. Or at least they could up until this spring. According to Hank Torborg, current commander of VFW Chapter 6354, which runs the Garberville Vets Hall, a 2nd District supervisor long ago convinced the veterans that they had a better chance of getting their hall approved if they agreed to have a courthouse in the same building. This political arrangement caused some grumbling among vets. However, it is more than 60 miles from Garberville to Eureka. The branch courthouse in Garberville makes it easier for everyone in Southern Humboldt to deal with court matters and, no doubt, made it possible for more of them to make their court dates.

Not only that, but if you've ever attended a meeting, a workshop or a lecture in Southern Humboldt, or taken a class, or attended a birthday party, a wedding, a reception, a wake or a funeral, chances are it happened at the Vets Hall. If you live here, of course, you know about the community Thanksgiving dinner that takes place at the hall, even if you haven't spent the holiday there yourself. Thanksgiving at the Vets Hall is a huge, all-volunteer effort with a long history. Throw in Christmas dinner with a visit from Santa, and it's clear the Vets Hall has become the heart of our community.

It's simple logistics, really.

Say you teach dog obedience training and you live in Alderpoint, 12 miles east of Garberville, up a steep, curvy mountain road. If you advertise for students, you will get one in Ettersburg (16 miles west of Garberville), another in Myers Flat (15 miles north), a third in Piercy (20 miles south), and one more student right in Garberville. It only makes sense to meet in Garberville, and the Vets Hall is the most reasonably priced multipurpose space available. As the SoHum community continues to grow, so too has the importance of the Garberville Vets Hall to community life.

Torborg, the local VFW commander, knows the story behind the John Haynes Memorial Veterans Hall better than most. The story begins shortly after World War II, when a group of mostly World War I vets got it in their minds to open a new Veterans Hall in Garberville. They had tired of the cold, damp Fireman's Hall and wanted a place of their own with a kitchen. They started a fundraising campaign and held a steelhead fishing derby.

By the mid-1950s, the vets had raised more than $9,000. They approached Underwood about purchasing the property she owned on the corner of Conger and Locust streets in Garberville, but Underwood insisted on donating the land to the cause, meaning the veterans suddenly had the money they needed to begin construction.

Underwood deeded the land to the vets, who formed The John Haynes Memorial Building Association. In turn, under a provision of state law that allows the property to be managed publicly, in perpetuity, as a memorial veterans hall, the vets deeded the property to the county. Apparently, the political decision to include a courthouse in the same building led many vets to fear that the county was trying to take over their hall. This led to a somewhat contentious relationship between the Garberville vets and the county of Humboldt right from the beginning, and the John Haynes Memorial Veterans Hall appears to have been something of a thorn in the county's side ever since.

Meanwhile, other changes were underway in Southern Humboldt. As back-to-the-landers began showing up in greater numbers, they started holding their events, parties and boogies at the old, cold, drafty and damp Fireman's Hall. Friction between these newcomers and the established townspeople, including many vets, increased as more and more hippies moved into SoHum. Tempers flared and meetings were held, but tensions between the two groups finally exploded one night in 1983 when an arsonist torched the Garberville Fireman's Hall, burning it to the ground.

The fire left the Vets Hall as the only affordable rental in Southern Humboldt. No effort was made to rebuild the Fireman's Hall. Instead, the back-to-the-landers formed a group called the "Mateel," for the two watersheds they occupied, the Mattole and the Eel, and commenced their own fundraising campaign to build a hall of their own. These newcomers, still reeling from the violence of the arson but also beginning to feel their oats as the fledgling black market marijuana industry began to grow, vowed to come back stronger than ever. Instead of building an all-purpose hall, the Mateel community opted for a concert venue.

They had their reasons. I never went to the old Fireman's Hall, but I can attest that the Vets Hall, not unlike a lot of multipurpose community buildings, has terrible acoustics and it's likely the Mateel folks got tired of holding their boogies in awful sounding rooms. Who could blame them, especially in that era of FM stereo, audio-ophile component systems and half-speed master recordings? So, the Mateel built a great sounding concert hall and installed a top-flight sound system, which stands as a testament to the community's deep respect and appreciation for the performing arts. There's only one problem: The Mateel Community Center is just too expensive to rent for dog training, a club meeting or a whole lot of other things that make a community function.

The Mateel charges between $800 and $1,000 a day to use the hall, with extra fees for cleaning and use of the lights and sound system. It offers a discount rate for nonprofit organizations, but compared to the $20 to $25 an hour the Vets Hall charged, there's really no comparison. It is possible to rent just the bottom floor of the Mateel by the hour, but it still costs more than twice as much as the Vets Hall.

Even as the Mateel Community Center rose in prominence, the SoHum community became more reliant on the John Haynes Memorial Veterans Hall for everything from seniors exercise classes to circuit-bending workshops for the Southern Humboldt Amateur Radio Club. As the years passed, Vietnam vets succeeded Word War II vets, and the lines between hippie and straight began to soften. To help ease tensions and build community, the vets started hosting a Thanksgiving dinner. Everyone in the community was invited, and everyone was invited to help.

The event proved so popular that they decided to do it again for Christmas. Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners at the Vets Hall have been a SoHum tradition for more than 30 years. One year, the vets served more than 300 people for Thanksgiving and every year at least a couple hundred spend the holiday at the hall, this in a town with a total population of around 1,000. Additionally, the vets and the local Kiwanis collect Toys for Tots every year, store the cache of donated toys at the hall and, every Christmas, Santa comes to distribute them.

Meanwhile, the roof has leaked for as long as anyone can remember. The lack of a service contract with the county led to considerable rancor between Garberville vets and the Humboldt County Board of Supervisors in the ensuing decades, but the vets and the county finally came to an agreement that clearly established who is responsible for the hall's maintenance on Sept. 17, 2002. The agreement notes, "The county and Garberville veterans associations have been living, somewhat tenuously, under terms of a 1985 agreement that expired in 1987. The attached agreement is the culmination of years of negotiations, and represents, staff submits, a mutually satisfactory arrangement."

The agreement also tells us: "Veterans, years ago, without county permission, replaced part of the roof at a cost of $7,567. The county in fiscal year 1999-2000 reimbursed the veterans half the amount ($3,784) and offered to reimburse the remaining half ($3,783) on signing of a new agreement." The new agreement clearly delineates responsibility for maintenance and repair of the hall, listing roof repair and replacement right at the top, under county responsibilities. According to Torborg, the roof leaked at the time the agreement was signed.

At this point you are probably wondering what's the problem with the roof of this building. It stems from the fact that, like a lot of other public buildings of the era, the hall has a flat roof. Back in the late 1950s and through most of the 1960s, people loved clean, modern Bauhaus lines, and those boxy, flat-roofed designs looked so good on paper no one could resist them. Architects sold thousands of sleek, modern-looking, flat-roofed buildings to communities just like ours, and damn near every one of them leaked chronically. The Garberville Branch of the Humboldt County Public Library, right around the corner from the Vets Hall, has the same problem.

With the agreement of 2002 in place, the veterans turned their focus to the interior of the hall, making several improvements, including a new hardwood floor. Unfortunately, the chronic leaks in the roof have damaged a lot of these improvements. On a recent tour, Torborg pointed out places where water has damaged a tile floor, stained carpeting, shorted out a TV and damaged ceiling tiles, explaining that each of these had been due to different leaks at different times.

Each time they noticed a leak, the veterans informed the county of it. Occasionally, the county even sent people to make repairs. According to Torborg, "They'd send somebody out with a bucket of black jack to fix a leak, on a flat roof, where the whole roof needs to be replaced." One can only deduce, from the county's own mold report, that the county's maintenance of the Garberville Vets Hall had been inadequate to the task.

One of the county's repairs has been a fixture in the hall for many years: a 2-foot-by-2-foot shelf mounted overhead and out of reach on the internal wall between the main hall and the kitchen. On the shelf sits a large cooking pot. A hose attached to a bung on the side of the pot leads down the wall and out an open window. It's hard to say where they found a stock pot with a bung, or the proper hose to fit it, but these are the miracles of Humboldt County procurement. Unfortunately, the wall around that shelf is now infested with black mold, as are several other locations in the hall, including the veterans office ceiling.

The smell of mold permeated the building on the recent tour led by Torborg. The cramped office looked like it had been used that day. The desk had papers on it. Plaques hung on the wall near dress uniforms that hung in a row with filing cabinets lining the wall. Clearly the closure had come as a surprise, but a torn away piece of ceiling tile revealed the infestation.

Apparently it was someone at the court who asked the county to inspect the hall for mold. The court occupies about one-third of the building exclusively. Mold may have become apparent in the judges' chambers or the courtroom before anyone noticed it in the hall, but Kathy Wolman, who used the hall for many years with the Feet First dance troupe, said she smelled mold in the Vets Hall and knew the building had a problem long before the inspection proved it. Once the test came back positive for unhealthy levels of black mold in May, the county ordered the building closed and suspended all court activities there until further notice.

Suddenly, people from Blocksburg to Shelter Cove and from Pepperwood to Piercy had to scramble to find a work-around. While Garberville itself is a small town, Garberville is "town" — as in, "I'm going to town" — for a huge geographic area with a growing population. The John Haynes Memorial Veterans Hall, despite its problems, served this larger SoHum community so faithfully, in so many capacities, for so long, and with such humility, that most took it for granted. We're still scrambling.

Angelina Jaquez still doesn't know what she'll do. She runs Unleashed K9 Training Inc., and has come to rely on the hall, where she taught canine socialization, agility and obedience. "For dogs to learn to behave, they need to be in a pack, so it's important to get everyone together in one place," she said.

She described the difficulty she has had finding another location. "We can't use the community park, because there are no fenced areas, and because too many people let their dogs run with no leash, no training, no manners, no nothing," she said. "We tried to find a place in the Meadows Business Park, but nothing worked out there. Nilsen's Redway Feed Store volunteered to let us use their parking lot, but there's just too much activity in that parking lot and, in the summer, the pavement is too hot for the dogs' paws. I'm currently holding classes in one of my students' yards, but that will only work as long as the weather holds out. I still don't know what I'm going to do when it starts to rain."

She explained that the outdoor setting doesn't work very well, as fewer people show up when it's hot out, which deprives the dogs of the consistency they need for a good training class. Ultimately, she needs an indoor space with air conditioning and floors that are easy to clean. (Carpeted rooms won't work, as dogs do have accidents on occasion.)

"I work a lot with rehab dogs, and dogs that are difficult to deal with, have bite records and other problems," Jaquez continued. "A lot of these dog owners are at their wits end. Without my class, some of these dogs will probably have to be put down."

Evelyn King, who teaches an exercise class for seniors in SoHum, said participation in the class has gone down considerably since it had to be moved out of the Garberville Vets Hall. She still teaches, but sometimes has no students show up for her class at the Healy Senior Center in Redway. "One nice thing about the Vets Hall," Evelyn said, "is that it is so close to the senior housing in Garberville. When we did the class there, the seniors could just walk over to the class, but to get (to Redway) they need a ride."

Other Vets Hall users face similar challenges. When asked, Vets Hall booking manager Amy McClellan rattled off a long list of groups that used the hall every week. There was Feet First Dancers, with classes and rehearsals for ballet, salsa, tap, jazz, hip hop, modern and more. Then there are theater groups, Aikido classes and senior exercise classes. The Family Resource Center in Redway used the hall for parenting classes, and the Garberville Town Square organization used its kitchen to prepare food for events. A host of nonprofits used it to house their annual dinners, fundraisers and celebrations. Then there's the litany of public meetings held there, not to mention the monthly veterans dinner.

"I've probably forgotten some things but this should get you started," McClellan said.

Southern Humboldt just doesn't have that many alternatives. The much smaller Garberville Civic Club can handle about 50 people with a shoehorn, but it's more out of the way. The struggling Garberville Theater, and the newly opened Redwood Playhouse in the old College of the Redwoods building will work for a performance, or to screen a movie, but you can't really serve Thanksgiving dinner for 250 people in either of them and they don't have a kitchen. It's a conundrum. Many fear the county may opt to demolish the Vets Hall and with it, Garberville's long holiday tradition.

According to Fennell, the current 2nd District supervisor, the county is looking at the situation and trying to decide if the building is worth saving. The 2002 agreement stipulates that it is the county's responsibility to fix the roof and rebuild the hall if it is destroyed. However, the agreement also states: "In a situation where the building is destroyed, we have included language that we will rebuild as soon as possible, and commit to beginning reconstruction within a year of destruction. This recognizes that county timelines have constraints."

Those constraints are the reason the roof didn't get fixed for 15 years. The vets have invested a lot of resources into this building, expecting the county would fulfill its obligation under the agreement. The county's apparent failure to live up to its promise has hurt the entire community, especially area veterans. The hall closure has disrupted their activities, and threatens their property. For everyone else, it's going to be a lot harder to find a place to meet, teach a class or have a wedding reception, and there doesn't appear to be an easy answer.

The vets favor fixing the roof and removing the mold, according to Torborg, and the sooner the better. He hopes the problem can be solved in relatively short order if it is handled quickly, before the mold has time to spread. Any other solution will likely leave Southern Humboldt without an affordable hall — and local vets without a place to meet — for the foreseeable future.

And there's more to this than simple inconvenience. Not only is the Vets Hall an important part of everyday life in SoHum, it also provides critical infrastructure in times of emergency. A provision in the 2002 agreement states that the hall will serve as a care center or "other emergency facility" during declared disasters or states of emergency. In fact, the Vets Hall has been used as a severe weather shelter on the coldest nights of winter for a long time.

For many years, community organizers worked closely with the veterans around homeless issues. Many vets were homeless at the time and Veterans for Peace activists within the Garberville veterans post made the building available to people caught outdoors during nights when the temperatures fell below freezing. This past winter, however, the veterans decided they no longer wanted the hall used as an emergency shelter, citing safety, security and insurance concerns.

Since then, community organizers Debra Carey and Paul Encimer have approached Fennell to establish an "extreme weather protocol" to determine emergency conditions under which the hall could be used as an emergency shelter. They say she's been extremely reluctant to exercise the county's authority under the agreement and there's currently no shelter for the people who need it in Southern Humboldt.

From one grieving mother's generosity, and the work of three generations of local veterans, came a modest, poorly designed building on Conger Street in Garberville, but the forces that shape this community, and the people who live here, have made the Garberville Vets Hall into the heart of Southern Humboldt life.

Meanwhile the forces at play in county government allowed the Garberville Vets Hall to fall into disrepair. Other Veterans Halls in the county need repairs too, but few serve such a vital role for such a large community. Considering the county's ongoing structural budget deficit, it doesn't seem likely that the county will make building a new veterans hall in Garberville a priority any time soon. Many wonder if the hall will ever reopen.

In the meantime, the Mateel Community Center has agreed to host the vets annual Thanksgiving dinner, ensuring Southern Humboldt's heart will continue to beat at least a bit longer, however faintly. ●

Apples Made Savory

Moroccan chicken
apple tagine

By Andrea Juarez

tabletalk@northcoastjournal.com

Fall is a glorious time of year. Green leaves turning golden and crimson. Brisk mornings and sunny afternoons. Best of all, apples abound — ready to be picked and eaten. It's no wonder October is national apple month.

For people like moi, who think apples are the perfect fruit, it is paradise. My crisper is filled to the brim with locally grown Gravensteins, Fuji, Mutsu and a gorgeous mystery apple.

If you are like the majority of folks, especially in the U.S., you likely only eat apples as a snack or in sweet dishes. This season, consider expanding your horizons and palate and delve into the savory side. The tartness and sweetness brighten many meals.

For a burst of flavor and crunch, add them to a sandwich (try ham, sharp cheese, sliced apple and hot pepper jam) or chop up some for a kale or broccoli salad. I also like to cook apples like root vegetables. Stuff empanadas with apples, cheese and caramelized onions. Blend them in soups. Braise them along with meats (a la chicken Normandy). And, sear thick slices to garnish Moroccan chicken stew (recipe below).

In Moroccan and North African cookery, fruit such as apples, pears, quinces, apricots, prunes and raisins are frequently added to meat dishes, especially tagines. I developed this recipe years ago and it continues to be a favorite in my house. Those bites of warm, tender apple sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar are a luscious contrast to the rich and slightly spicy stew.

One more thing. To make this stew, there's no need to buy a tagine (the cooking vessel); a Dutch oven or heavy pot will do.

Try something new with your apples this season. After dinner, you can still have that apple pie.

Moroccan Chicken and Apple Tagine

The sautéed apples are the highlight in this dish. Bring the list of ingredients together easily by prepping and pre-measuring the chicken, spices and vegetables before you start cooking. Serves 4

Ingredients:

1 ½ pounds chicken thighs (skinless and deboned), cut into 2-inch chunks
2 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil
1 onion, chopped finely
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cayenne
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 cups chicken stock
1 15 oz. can chickpeas with liquid
2 teaspoons lemon juice (juice of half a small lemon)
3 large carrots, diced into 2-inch pieces
1 large potato, diced into 1 1/2-inch pieces
2 small zucchini, diced into 2-inches pieces
1 ½ tablespoons butter
3 medium tart apples
Cinnamon
Sugar
2 sprigs parsley, chopped

To make the stew: Generously season the chicken with salt and pepper. Heat a heavy deep skillet or Dutch oven on medium heat. When the pan is hot, add the oil and brown the chicken but do not cook throughout. Remove chicken and set aside. In the same pot, add the onions and more oil if needed. Stir until the onions become translucent. Next add the garlic, ginger, cinnamon, cayenne, salt and pepper and stir frequently for about 1 minute to allow spices to bloom. Return the chicken to the pot and stir. Add 2 cups water, carrots, potatoes and the can of chickpeas with liquid.

Bring contents to a low boil. Cover and reduce heat to simmer. After 40 minutes, add the zucchini and leave it to simmer another 20 minutes or until the meat is cooked throughout and the vegetables are tender but not mushy. Cover and turn off the heat.

To prepare the apples: Wash the apples, but do not peel them because the skin will help hold the slices together as they cook. Core and cut the apples into six wedges. In a separate large skillet on medium heat, melt the butter. When the butter starts to bubble, place the apple slices cut-side down in the skillet. Do not cook skin-side down. Sear them until they become slightly golden and caramelized before flipping them with tongs. The apples are done when browned but not falling apart. Remove them from the heat and place them on a plate skin-side down. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Keep the apple slices warm.

Serve the stew over couscous. Garnish with chopped parsley and arrange the apples on top. ●

The Trip

By Andy Powell

thesetlist@northcoastjournal.com

Some of my luckier friends informed me how awesome this recent Desert Trip Festival was down in the hotlands of California. They shared because they know I'm a music fan and this festival had some of my all time favorites (Bob Dylan, Paul McCartney, Neil Young, The Rolling Stones, The Who and Roger Waters) but mostly they were just rubbing it in my face that I missed this event of a lifetime. To be honest, I'm not much of a music festival guy — assuming I can afford tickets in the first place — as they tend to be too crowded, sometimes too hot and often too douchey, thanks to, you know, people. But this did get me thinking about what else I could have asked for in a festival lineup.

A day or so later, I was at the bank and struck up a conversation about said festival with an employee. We eventually got to speaking about how she was actually on her way down to Sacramento with her 20-something year old daughter to see a concert that weekend. She wasn't particularly enthused about the headline, but was glad to get to spend time with her daughter. I started to wonder what concerts my daughter would want to see — she's barely a teenager — when she's a year or two older, and if she would want her parents to come with her (doubtful). I then started to even wonder if she would even want to see a live concert. I don't mean to generalize and sound like an old man here — I do — but she and much of her generation interact with music as a digital and oftentimes disposable product (they're not the first). Music exists now almost exclusively in the realm of YouTube and Spotify for many. Songs and artists provide short-term enjoyment which then disappear after a shelf life of about two weeks to be replaced by the next hit song. I don't mean to sound too pessimistic about all of this — I do — and I realize these are age-old observations one generation makes about the next, but if one doesn't build long-term relationships with musicians, songwriters and bands, why would one travel anywhere to hear them play live?

Maybe I'm wrong. Maybe she and her friends will get the bug and get into live music the way many of their parents have. Sure, they may not follow a band around Grateful Dead style but maybe they'll get hooked on feeling the air vibrate the way their ancestors did. I hope so. And I know when they're ready, Keith Richards will be ready for them.

Thursday

Up in sunny Blue Lake — even through it rains occasionally — you'll find one of Humboldt's longer-running bluegrass bands The Compost Mountain Boys plucking away at the Mad River Brewery Tasting room around 6 p.m. The show is free, but the beer is not. That's still not a bad deal. In Arcata, a band hailing from Europe (East Bohemia? Prague? I'm not totally clear) will stop by Humboldt Brews to play some tunes and plant some trees. With the fitting name Please the Trees, these folks will no doubt be blown away by the ancient beauties we take for granted on a daily basis. Supporting Robert Plant last year (Plant + Trees?), PTT will be doing a bit more than just jamming in Arcata. In each city it plays, the group plants a tree and records the photographic evidence on Facebook. The challenge may be finding space to plant a tree here. PTT will be supported by Annie Girl and the Flight around 9:30 p.m. for this $10 show.

Friday

As any of us with kids know, Halloween, ahem, Samhain is right around the corner. Helping us celebrate this old Celtic end-of-summer holiday are the Crested Hens, who will be playing Celtic tunes and Celtic-inspired originals at Gallagher's Irish Pub in Eureka at 5:30 p.m. for free. Music from what we may call the Western Edge of Western Music will be performed at The Old Steeple in Ferndale tonight at 7:30 p.m. Led Kaapana and Da Ukelele Boyz bring us some feel-good-sand-between-the-toes tunes from the Hawaiian islands. A master of the slack key guitar, Led has four Grammy nominations under his belt and will be bringing us some musical sunshine this evening. Order a Mai Tai at The Palace before (or after) the show for the full experience. A $30 ticket price for this one. Local musical jack-of-all-trades Chris Parreira tells me that New Orleans-based musician Luke Winslow-King is stopping Real Vocal String Quartet plays Friday, Oct. 21 and Saturday, Oct. 22 at the Arcata Playhouse at 8 p.m.

by the North Coast Repertory Theater tonight with his trio at 8 p.m. With a vast knowledge of Mississippi Delta blues, trad jazz, and some hints of rock 'n' roll, LWK (as the press release abbreviates) is out on the road supporting his recent release of I'm Glad Trouble Don't Last Always. Sounds a bit bluesy, don't it? $15 will get you in to this one. Also at 8 p.m., the Real Vocal String Quartet will be playing two nights at the Arcata Playhouse. A Bay Area based quartet — as the name implies — that counts classical, jazz, and rock as influences, will be performing songs from its newest release, Slacker Ridge. The quartet will also be sneaking in a few Led Zeppelin and Pixies covers, so that should be a real treat from members who have recorded with and played with Ella Fitzgerald, Ray Charles, Frank Sinatra, Smokey Robinson, Dave Grisman, Billy Joel, Wilco and Donovan. $18 ticket prices, and if you can't catch 'em tonight, you've got another chance Saturday. The Jam in Arcata hosts Life During Wartime, which should give you Heads fans a tip off. Based out of Portland — from what I can tell — this Talking Heads tribute band is heavily influenced by Stop Making Sense and occasionally covers that live album. Will it do so tonight? There's only one way to find out. Show time's around 9 p.m. and cover charge is TBA. Another band pulling a two-night residency here in Humboldt and smartly so, may I add, are favorites Melvin Seals and JGB who will be at Humboldt Brews around 9:30 p.m. Anyone from the extended Dead family is always wise to make a trip through Humboldt when on the road, and if you've seen Melvin and JGB before, you know you should probably snatch up a $30 ticket before this one sells out.

Saturday

Did you miss the Real Vocal String Quartet at The Arcata Playhouse last night? Did you miss Melvin Seals and JGB at Humboldt Brews? Good news is both groups are playing again tonight. Same Humboldt time, same Humboldt venue, and same Humboldt price (see above). Oyster Bay, New York, groove-jammers TAUK are in town tonight and I've been hearing some buzz about the band from some of my friends in that scene. It's instrumental rock-fusion of sorts sneaking in some ambient, hip hop and progressive rock into the sound. My pal Tomek of Helekinetic, who is opening up the show, tells me (if memory serves correct) that TAUK is "kind of a softer STS9 with some funky shit and jazz touches a la Steely Dan." Sounds cool to me. Doors open at 9 p.m. and $20 will get you in for this groovefest at the Arcata Theatre Lounge.

Full show listings in the Journal's Music and More grid, the Calendar and online. Bands and promoters, send your gig info, preferably with a high-res photo or two, to music@northcoastjournal.com.

Andy Powell is a congenital music lover and hosts The Night Show on KWPT 100.3 FM weeknights at 6 p.m. He's never been to a proper music festival.

British author Andrea Wulf visits Humboldt State University on Monday, Oct. 24, to talk about the subject of her award-winning book, The Invention of Nature, German naturalist Alexander von Humboldt, whom she calls the “most colorful and captivating man I have ever heard of,” and for whom Humboldt County is named. The author is giving a free talk in the Van Duzer Theatre at 1 p.m. (the 7 p.m. show is sold out).

The Majestic

Ferndale has been the site of a few Hollywood films but perhaps none has showcased so much of the picturesque town as 2001's The Majestic (although Outbreak had its fair share of recognizable Cream City landmarks). Celebrate the film's 15-year anniversary with the folks from Ferndale Music Company at a special showing at The Old Steeple, Saturday, Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. ($5).

Facebook

Stroll or strut with your kids or your mutt at Humboldt Bay Firefighters' Bark in the Park, Saturday, Oct. 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Sequoia Park ($20 race entry fee). The dog-friendly (dogs must be on leashes and current on vaccinations) 5K run/walk benefits Friends For Life Animal Rescue and features live music, raffles and adoptable and walkable dogs. Dig it!

Love to dance? Love Halloween and/or Dead of the Dead, but can't wait any longer to twirl your skirts or tailcoats? Then don't miss USA Dance's October dance event, a Día de los Muertos-themed evening Saturday, Oct. 22 at Redwood Raks ($10, $5 USA Dance members/seniors/students w/ID). Doors open at 6 p.m. with a merengue dance lesson at 6:30 p.m. followed by Latin dancing until 10 p.m.

Swing your sugar and shake your skulls at this Day of the Dead dance party, put on by the Humboldt chapter of USA Dance, a nonprofit organization dedicated to improving the quality and the quantity of ballroom dancing in the country. We've got a pretty active chapter here that offers frequent events that feature a lesson followed by dancing. Everyone is welcome whether they have dance experience or not, to dance or just spectate. Sometimes it's a pleasure just to watch the smooth moves of couples on the floor, and October's evening's exhibition of lively merengue should be especially fun. Halloween/Day of the Dead dress is encouraged (but not required) and sugar skull face-painting is offered and included with entry fee (although tips are appreciated). So shake, rattle and roll in your best bone suits.

The Ghouls Next Door

Halloween is a time for dressing up or taking it off — depending on the party. And sometimes it's about dressing up and taking it off. Get ready for the latter. Va Va Voom Revue is bringing the boo (m) to the Eureka Theater Saturday, Oct. 22 with its scintillating Halloween show, Ghouls Night Out ($25 premiere seats, $15 general). Doors open at 8 p.m. for cocktails and mingling. Get your howl on at 9 p.m. when the house lights go down and the stage lights come up.

The show features not only the bewitching ladies of Va Va Voom, but special guests, costume contests (go on, toss on a tassel or two), games, a 50/50 raffle and other vampy fun. Joining the show are the baddest asses in the biz, Grrrlz 2 Men, the dashing Justin Cider and the sultry hip shakers of Tribal Oasis Bellydance. Keeping things smooth all night long is emcee, Mr. Drag King Humboldt himself, Hugh Johnson. And perhaps the best part of the evening? A special calendar sneak peek of Pinups and Pooches, which benefits the Companion Animal Foundation. Mrrow.

Advance tickets will save you a few bones ($20 premiere, $12 general). Get them at Good Relations, Annex 39 and Old Growth Tattoo. The event is 21 and over.

The Accountant and Max Steel

By John J. Bennett

filmland@northcoastjournal.com

Reviews

THE ACCOUNTANT. Director Gavin O'Connor has been grinding it out now for almost two decades. He made some waves in the burgeoning '90s indie boom without ever becoming a Big Name Director. His film Warrior (2011), a fight movie with more grit and a wider emotional vocabulary than most prestige dramas, caught my attention. It deserved more acclaim than it received, at least for the towering performances of Tom Hardy, Joel Edgerton and Nick Nolte. O'Connor seemed ready for major mainstream success, capable of coaxing such performances from formidable actors while balancing style and restraint behind the camera. Regardless, O'Connor keeps working (time and circumstance have thus far prevented me from seeing Jane Got a Gun, also released this year) and, with The Accountant, he may finally have a big enough hit on his C.V. to give his name some resonance.

Christian Wolff (Ben Affleck) operates a vanilla accounting firm in a strip mall outside of Chicago. He helps struggling farmers avoid foreclosure, lives an unadorned, solitary, ordered life and for relaxation takes target practice at a distance of a mile with a mil-spec Barrett .50-caliber sniper rifle. He's a tough nut to crack. Tougher still is the Christian Wolff who, using a variety of assumed identities, travels the world as a forensic accountant for the one percent of the one percent, the people who don't pay taxes and aren't big on trust. It's that Wolff who has attracted the attention of legitimate domestic tech firm called Living Robotics, where a talented young accountant (Anna Kendrick) may have discovered some discrepancies in the books. Wolff, or at least one of his aliases, has also come within the purview of Director Ray King (J.K. Simmons) of the U.S. Treasury Department. King enlists/coerces Marybeth Medina (Cynthia Addai-Robinson) to uncover the identity of his shadowy quarry.

Wolff's work at Living Robotics and Medina's investigation of him continue apace, and the inevitable dead bodies begin to accumulate. In flashback, we learn more about Wolff's unusual upbringing: a military intelligence father who chose not to treat his son's autism gently but to harden it in the forge of combat training, to focus and re-focus his energy and intellect.

Within this narrative is another thread, wherein Wolff is befriended by a mob accountant (Jeffery Tambor) while serving time in federal prison. He learns some valuable lessons about black money, develops perhaps his first meaningful adult friendship and is set on a life-long path of intrigue and vengeance.

There are moments in The Accountant when it feels like O'Connor may be trying to keep one too many plates spinning, but in the end he pulls it off with aplomb. The plot twists toward the end aren't exactly shocking, and feel a little unnecessary. But held against such a well-crafted, well-paced, well-acted movie, that's a minor shortcoming. The Accountant delivers on the promise of Warrior, even continuing some of its legacy of challenging family relationships and exploration of violence as expression. While it may lack some of Warrior's centeredness and narrative intensity, it demonstrates admirable control over a much larger, more complex story and production. This is a popcorn movie, sure, but executed with more care and precision than most. It's dark, stylish, compelling, touching, even funny in a few places — popcorn elevated. R. 128M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA, MILL CREEK.

MAX STEEL. In hindsight, it doesn't really even make sense that I saw this. But I actually thought that going into a movie with literally no prior knowledge might actually produce a pleasant surprise. And then I watched it and came back to reality.

The first indication of trouble was the Mattel logo. I haven't researched but I'm told by reasonably reliable sources that this is based on a cartoon based on a toy from some years ago that may or may not be the subject of current re-release. Regardless, it shouldn't be the subject of a major motion picture.

Max (Ben Winchell) moves back to the town of his birth with Mom (Maria Bello). Said town is also the site of the industrial accident that claimed the life of Ben's genius engineer father, Jim (Mike Doyle). Their return causes Max's body to start producing some exotic, powerful energy that can only be contained by a silicon-based lifeform named Steel (voiced by Josh Brener, who is the movie's only saving grace). Soon enough, they are being pursued by gun-toting thugs in black Suburbans and then there's a noisy climactic battle. Andy Garcia is called upon to recite terrible dialogue and do a lot of screaming. PG13. 92M. BROADWAY, MILL CREEK.

Previews

AMERICAN HONEY. A teenage girl (Sasha Lane) hits the road with young, hard-partying crew traveling the country. With Shia LaBeouf, so you know it takes a turn. R. 163M. BROADWAY.

BOO! A MADEA HALLOWEEN. Tyler Perry is back in the wig and glasses as Madea, chaperoning teens and spoofing horror movies. PG13. 103M. BROADWAY.

DENIAL. Rachel Weisz plays historian Deborah Lipstadt in her legal battle against Holocaust denier David Irving, who sued her for libel in 1996, forcing her to prove the WWII atrocities actually occurred. PG13. 103M. MINOR.

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES. Zach Galifianakis and Isla Fisher play a boring

THE BEATLES: EIGHT DAYS A WEEK, THE TOURING YEARS. Found footage and interviews covering 1963 to 1966. NR. 137M. MINOR.

THE BIRTH OF A NATION. This dramatization of Nat Turner's uprising strikes too many afterschool special notes in its uneven storytelling. Director/actor Nate Parker fails to humanize his powerful subject or explore Turner's most difficult moments. R. 120M. BROADWAY.

CAFE SOCIETY. Jesse Eisenberg stands in for Woody Allen, mingling with mobsters and starlets in old Hollywood. With Kristen Stewart. R. 112M. MINOR.

DEEPWATER HORIZON. Peter Berg's taut oil rig disaster drama keeps a tight focus on the struggle of its real-life characters in a few crucial hours. PG13. 107M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA, MILL CREEK.

THE GIRL ON THE TRAIN. The thriller relies on the twist and leaves plot fragments hanging, but its departure from standard detective narrative is refreshing and Emily Blunt's performance carries the suspense. R. 112M. BROADWAY, MILL CREEK.

HELL OR HIGH WATER. A pair of bank-robbing brothers (Chris Pine, Ben Foster) are pursued by a pair of Texas Rangers (Jeff Bridges, Gil Birmingham) in a fine, character-driven film about what poverty does to people. R. 102M. MINOR.

KEVIN HART: WHAT NOW? The comedian performs stand-up in a Philadelphia arena. R. 96M. BROADWAY, MILL CREEK.

THE MAGNIFICENT SEVEN. Some fine performances in this enjoyable remake, particularly from Peter Sarsgaard as the villain and a monstrous Vincent D'Onofrio, as well as strong action sequences. Still, it lags in places and breaks no new ground for the genre. PG13. 133M. FORTUNA.

MASTERMINDS. Tame and toothless heist comedy punches a little low and doesn't get enough dark laughs out of stars Zach Galifianakis and Kristen Wiig. PG13. 94M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA.

MIDDLE SCHOOL: THE WORST YEARS OF MY LIFE. The new kid in school (Griffin Gluck) sets out to break each of its suffocating rules of conduct. R. 112M. BROADWAY, MILL CREEK.

MISS PEREGRINE'S HOME FOR PECULIAR CHILDREN. Eva Green stars as headmistress in Tim Burton's adaptation of the book about children with magical powers. PG13. 127M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA, MILL CREEK, MINOR.

STORKS. A retail delivery bird winds up in the baby business trying to get an infant to a family. Or you could just have the talk with your kids. Voices of Jennifer Anniston and Kelsey Grammer. PG. 87M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA, MILL CREEK.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF DONNA LEE HOLLAND CASE NO. PR160291

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, DONNA LEE HOLLAND A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Petitioner, IAIN HAUKKA In the Superior Court of California, County of Humboldt. The petition for probate requests that IAIN HAUKKA be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by court. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held on November 17, 2016 at 2:00 p.m. at the Superior Court of California, County of Humboldt, 825 Fifth Street, Eureka, in Dept.: 8. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

On 11/8/2016 at 11:00 AM, CLEAR RECON CORP., as duly appointed trustee under and pursuant to Deed of Trust recorded 10/13/2006, as Instrument No. 2006-29668-21, of Official Records in the office of the County Recorder of Humboldt County, State of CALIFORNIA executed by: DAVID M BUDDE, UNMARRIED MAN WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO HIGHEST BIDDER FOR CASH, CASHIERS CHECK DRAWN ON A STATE OR NATIONAL BANK, A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL CREDIT UNION, OR A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, SAVINGS ASSOCIATION, OR SAVINGS BANK SPECIFIED IN SECTION 5102 OF THE FINANCIAL CODE AND AUTHORIZED TO DO BUSINESS IN THIS STATE: AT THE FRONT ENTRANCE TO THE COUNTY COURTHOUSE, 825 5TH ST., EUREKA, CA 95501 all right, title and interest conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State described as: LOT 20 OF TRACT NO. 484, CAMINO WAY SUBDIVISION, ACCORDING TO THE MAP THEREOF FILED DECEMBER 18, 1997, IN BOOK 22 OF MAPS, PAGES 22 AND 23, HUMBOLDT COUNTY RECORDS. The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 1465 CAMINO WAY MCKINLEYVILLE, CA 95519 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be held, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, condition, or encumbrances, including fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust, to pay the remaining principal sums of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is: $296,343.70 If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 042743-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. FOR SALES INFORMATION: (844) 477-7869 CLEAR RECON CORP. 4375 Jutland Drive Suite 200 San Diego, California 92117

SUMMONS (Family Law)
CASE NUMBER: FL160380
NOTICE TO RESPONDENT: James F Jennings
You have been sued. Read the information below.
PETITIONER'S NAME IS: Caroline E. Jennings
You have 30 calendar days after this Summons and Petition are served on you to file a Response (form FL-120 or FL-123) at the court and have a copy served on the petitioner. A letter, phone call or court appearance will not protect you.
If you do not file your Response on time, the court may make orders affecting your marriage or domestic partnership, your property, and custody of your children. You may be ordered to pay support and attorney fees and costs.
For legal advice, contact a lawyer immediately. Get help finding a lawyer at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courts.ca.gov/selfhelp), at the California Legal Services website or by contacting your local county bar association.
NOTICE-RESTRAINING ORDERS BELOW:
These restraining orders are effective against both spouses or domestic partners until the petition is dismissed, a judgment is entered, or the court makes further orders. They are enforceable anywhere in California by any law enforcement officer who has received or seen a copy of them.
FEE WAIVER: If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the clerk for a fee waiver form. The court may order you to pay back all or part of the fees and costs that the court waived for you or the other party.

1. The name and address of the court are:
Superior Court of California, County of Humboldt
825 5th Street
Eureka, CA 95501

2. The name, address, and telephone number of the petitioner's attorney, or the petitioner without an attorney, are:
Caroline E. Jennings
300 H. St
Arcata, CA 95521

Date: May 24, 2016 clerk, by Kim M. Bartleson/Jackson W., Deputy STANDARD FAMILY LAW RESTRAINING ORDERS

Starting immediately, you and your spouse or domestic partner are restrained from:

1. Removing the minor children of the parties from the state or applying for a new or replacement passport for those minor children without the prior written consent of the other party or an order of the court;

2. Cashing, borrowing against, canceling, transferring, disposing of, or changing the beneficiaries of any insurance or other coverage, including life, health, automobile, and disability, held for the benefit of the parties and their minor children;

3. transferring, encumbering, hypothecating, concealing, or in any way disposing of any way disposing of any property, real or personal, whether community, quasi-community, or separate, without the written consent of the other party or an order of the court, except in the usual course of business or for the necessities of life; and

4. Creating a nonprobate transfer or modifying a nonprobate transfer in a manner that affects the disposition of property subject to the transfer, without the written consent of the other party or an order of the court. Before revocation of a nonprobate transfer can take effect or a right of survivorship to property can be eliminated, notice of the change must be filed and served on the other party. You must notify each other of any proposed extraordinary expenditures at least five business days prior to incurring these extraordinary expenditures and account to the court for all extraordinary expenditures made after these restraining orders are effective. However, you may use community property, quasi-community property, or your own separate property to pay an attorney to help you or to pay court costs.

NOTICE-ACCESS TO AFFORDABLE HEALTH INSURANCE: Do you or someone in your household need affordable health insurance? If so, you should apply for Covered California. Covered California can help reduce the cost you pay towards high quality affordable health care. For more information, visit www.coveredca.com. Or call Covered California at 1-800-300-1506. WARNING-IMPORTAN INFORMATION California law provides that, for purposes of division of property upon dissolution of a marriage or domestic partnership or upon legal separation, property acquired by the parties during marriage or domestic partnership or upon legal separation, property acquired by the parties during marriage or domestic partnership in joint form is presumed to be community property. If either party to this action should die before the jointly held community property is divided, the language in the deed that characterizes how title is held (i.e., joint tenancy, tenants in common, or community property) will be controlling, and not the community property presumption. You should consult your attorney if you want the community property presumption to be written into the recorded title to the property.

NOTICE INVITING BIDS

1. Notice is hereby given that the Governing Board of the Peninsula Union School District ("District"), of the County of Humboldt, State of California, will receive sealed bids for the Supply, Install and Commissioning of a Grid-Tied, 990 kW, Solar PV System Project ("Project") up to, but not later than, 3 p.m., on Thursday, November 3, 2016, and will thereafter publicly open and read aloud the bids. All bids shall be received at the office of Greenway Partners, located at 1385 8th Street, in Arcata, California 95521.
2. Each bid shall be completed on the Bid Proposal Form included in the Contract Documents, and must conform and be fully responsive to this invitation, the plans and specifications and all other Contract Documents. Copies of the Contract Documents are available for examination at the office of the Peninsula Union School District, County of Humboldt, California, and may be obtained by licensed contractors for free.
3. Each bid shall be accompanied by cash, a cashier's or certified check, or a bidder's bond executed by a surety licensed to do business in the State of California as a surety, made payable to the District, in an amount not less than ten percent (10%) of the maximum amount of the bid. The check or bid bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder to whom the contract is awarded will execute the Contract Documents and will provide the required payment and performance bonds and insurance certificates within ten (10) days after the notification of the award of the Contract.
4. The successful bidder shall comply with the provisions of the Labor Code pertaining to payment of the generally prevailing rate of wages and apprenticeships or other training programs. The Department of Industrial Relations has made available the general prevailing rate of per diem wages in the locality in which the work is to be performed for each craft, classification or type of worker needed to execute the Contract, including employer payments for health and welfare, pension, vacation, apprenticeship and similar purposes. Copies of these prevailing rates are available to any interested party upon request and are online at <http://www.dir.ca.gov/DLSR>. The Contractor and all Subcontractors shall pay not less than the specified rates to all workers employed by them in the execution of the Contract. It is the Contractor's responsibility to determine any rate change.
5. The schedule of per diem wages is based upon a working day of eight hours. The rate for holiday and overtime work shall be at least time and one half.
6. The substitution of appropriate securities in lieu of retention amounts from progress payments in accordance with Public Contract Code §22300 is permitted.
7. Pursuant to Public Contract Code §4104, each bid shall include the name and location of the place of business of each subcontractor who shall perform work or service or fabricate or install work for the contractor in excess of one-half of one percent (0.5%) of the bid price. The bid shall describe the type of the work to be performed by each listed subcontractor.
9. Minority, women, and disabled veteran contractors are encouraged to submit bids. This bid is not subject to Disabled Veteran Business Enterprise requirements.
10. The project is subject to compliance monitoring and enforcement by the California Department of Industrial Relations. In accordance with SB 854, all bidders, contractors and subcontractors working at the site shall be duly registered with the Department of Industrial Relations at time of bid opening and at all relevant times. Proof of registration shall be provided as to all such contractors prior to the commencement of any work.
11. Each bidder shall possess at the time the bid is awarded the following classification(s) of California State Contractor's license: Class B (General Building Contractor) or a Class C-46 (Solar Contractor) or a Class C-10 (California Electrical Contractor).
12. Bidders' Conference. A non-mandatory bidders' conference will be held at Peninsula Union School District on Thursday, October 20, 2016 at 10:00 a.m. for the purpose of acquainting all prospective bidders with the Contract Documents and the Project site.

Black Widows

I spend a lot of my outdoor time looking for and at bugs. Especially ones that are dramatic looking or interesting to photograph, so when I noted a medium-sized spider on the front of the Carlotta post office last month ("Black Widows Found at Carlotta Post Office," Sept. 30), I got closer, tilted my head to use the reading portion of my bifocals and was surprised to see a tiny red hourglass on the creature's abdomen.

There are several other members of the large comb-footed spider family, theridiidae, that look similar in shape and size to the black widow, but only family latrodectus has the red hourglass on the undersides of their abdomens. It is one of the best diagnostic features. If the red hourglass is there, it is dangerous to humans.

Figures vary but it seems there are about 2,000 bites reported in the U.S. per year and very few fatalities. The symptoms, I understand, are particularly unpleasant. I only know one person who's been bitten. Her health was not particularly robust and she spent several days in the hospital. She reported that it was like having one horrendous body cramp that just didn't quit for days.

The spider gets its ominous name from the female's habit of eating the male after mating. Recent research indicates that our local species Latrodectus hesperus rarely does this, and such cannibalism may be a consequence of observing them in the laboratory where the male has no escape.

An article in Scientific American indicates black widows are toxic if consumed, however several species, including chickens and alligator lizards, seem to eat them with no ill effects. The extremely long-legged cellar spiders are known to eat young widows, as well.

Widow spiders are nearly blind and are creatures of their web. If you see one walking on the ground, it is either seeking to get back to its web or looking for a place to make a new one. They spin a deceptively "messy" three-dimensional web which may give them some protection from spider-hunting wasps. They are usually secretive, which leads to a common problem of people getting bit on the rump or genitals in outdoor privies. You sit down, make vibrations in the web, and she responds by rushing to potential prey and biting.

False Scorpions

After moving to the country a little more than 20 years ago, I noticed a tiny, dark critter, no bigger than a newsprint letter "o" scurrying across my counter. I scooped it up and checked it out with a hand lens. It was an animal I had only read about, a book scorpion or pseudoscorpion. After looking a bit I let it go outside. I've been on the lookout for them ever since.

When I got my new "super macro" lens, I went around snapping pictures of every little thing. When I downloaded some images of a tiny spider, I saw it was in the process of eating one of the strange little beasts. It made for a couple of dramatic and interesting photos but what I really wanted was the pseudoscorpion itself.

The other night at the light trap I noted a tiny dot on the old bedsheet I use as a reflective backdrop. I was surprised to see one of the tiny creatures. This time I took plenty of photos, captured it and took some more before letting it go.

I don't think it was attracted to the lights. They are active hunters so I think it was just exploring. While they are seldom seen, I suspect they're pretty common, feeding on tiny animals among leaf litter. Although they lack their larger cousin's tail and stinger, their claws (pedipalps) have tiny venomous bristles on their "thumbs," so the prey gets crushed, pierced and poisoned in one swift move. They pose zero threat to humans and are considered beneficial since they eat mites, carpet beetles, carpet moth larvae and just about anything else small enough for them to attack. Many species of these tiny arachnids are known to hitch rides on insects and even birds. I really like these little guys.
